

WILSON HAS GIVEN POPE HIS ANSWER

SENDS STRONG STATE PAPER TO HIS HOLINESS IN ANSWERING PEACE NOTE.

POSITION IS DEFINED

Clearly Indicates That the United States is in the War to Protect World From Aggression of Germany.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Washington, Aug. 28.—President Wilson has rejected the pope's peace proposals.

In a note dispatched Monday night, and made public here last evening, the president says that while he sympathizes with the pope's desire to end the war, he cannot be blinded and hardened by the terrible war must be touched by the loving appeal of his holiness. He would be folly to take the part of peace which would lead to the goal he proposes.

To deal with such a power as the present rulers of Germany upon the pope's plan, declares the president, would involve a recuperation of the world domination of that power, now balked but not defeated, after sweeping a continent with the blood of innocent women and children and the helpless poor as well as of soldiers.

Permanent peace must be based upon the faith of all the peoples and upon justice and fairness, and the common rights of mankind. It adds, "we cannot take the word of the present rulers of Germany as a guarantee of anything that is to endure unless explicitly supported by such conclusive evidence of the wisdom and justice of the German people themselves as the other peoples of the world would be justified in accepting."

President Wilson's rejecting the pope's peace proposals was regarded here today as finally settling the question of dealing with present German rulers unconquered or uncured at home. The president makes it clear that a lasting and durable peace can be negotiated only on a complete understanding with the German people and not alone on unstable guarantees of the existing government.

The note indicates that the American government does not intend post-bellum reprisals on the German people, but desires in the interest of world peace, that they be allowed to share in international economic opportunities. "If they will accept equality and not seek domination."

The note with its unequivocal denunciations of German military aggression, is believed to reflect accurately the attitude of the United States. The general tenor of the communication had been anticipated but diplomats were surprised to find in it a virtual appeal to the German people to strive for emancipation from military control and become fitted to deal with a world democracy.

Among other objections to a premature peace, the note indicates that it would result in the abandonment of the hope of Russia, to the intrigue, the manifold subtle interference, and the certain counter revolution which would be attempted by all the malign influences to which the German government has of late accustomed the world.

Aug. 27, 1917.

To His Holiness,
Benedictus XV,
Rome.

In acknowledgment of the communication of your holiness to the belligerent peoples, dated August 1, 1917, the President of the United States feels much gratified by the following reply: Every heart that has not been blinded and hardened by this terrible war must be touched by this moving appeal of his holiness the pope, and must be moved to the humane and generous motives which prompted it, and must fervently wish that we might take the path of peace he so persuasively points to. It is not, in fact, led to the goal he proposes. Our response must be based upon the stern facts and upon nothing else.

It is not a mere cessation of arms he desires; it is a stable and enduring peace. This agony must not be gone through with again, and it must be a matter of sober judgment what we will insure us against it. His holiness in substance proposes that we return to the status quo ante bellum, and that the belligerent peoples should be disarmed, and a respect of nations, based upon an acceptance of the principle of arbitration; that by a similar concert freedom of the seas be restored, and Italy, the perplexing problems of the Balkan states, and the restitution of Poland be left to such conciliatory adjustments as may be possible in the future. As such a peace, due regard being paid to the aspirations of the people whose political fortunes and affiliations will be involved. It is manifest that no part of this program can be successfully carried out unless the restitution of the status quo ante bellum furnishes a firm and satisfactory basis for it.

The object of this war is to deliver the free peoples of the world from the ruin and the actual power of a vast military establishment, controlled by an irresponsible government, and having secretly planned to dominate the world without regard either to the sacred obligations of treaty or the long established practices and long cherished principles of international law. The war, which chose its own time for the war, delivered its blow severely and suddenly; stopped at no barrier either of law or of mercy; swept a whole continent within the line of blood, and the blood of soldiers only, but the blood of innocent women and children also, and of the helpless poor; and now stands balked but not defeated, the enemy of four-fifths of the world.

This power is not the German people. It is the ruthless master of the German people. It is no business of ours how that great people, with their control of the American continent, support the domination of its purpose; but it is our business to see to it that the history of the rest

FEDERAL JUDGE UPHOLDS DRAFT

Judge Emory Speer.

"The nation has the right to use every man to defeat the migration to its soil of mighty nations or ferocious warriors whose barbarous inhumanity for three years has surpassed all others since the death of Attila, the scourge of God."

In these words Emory Speer, a Georgia federal judge, declared constitutional the selective service law. The case which he thus decided against a draft resister will be carried to the United States supreme court.

To deal with such a power by way of peace upon the plan proposed by his holiness the pope would, so far as we can see, involve a recuperation of the strength and a renewal of the policy would make it necessary to create a permanent hostile combination of nations against the German people, who are its instruments; and would result in abandoning the new-born Russia to the intrigue, the manifold subtle interference, and the certain counter revolution which would be attempted by all the malign influences to which the German government has of late accustomed the world.

Can peace be based upon a restitution of its power or upon any word of honor it could pledge in a treaty of settlement and accommodation? Responsible statesmen must now everywhere see, if they never saw before, that no peace can rest securely upon political or economic restrictions meant to benefit some nations and cripple or embarrass others, upon vindictive action of any sort, or any kind of revenge or deliberate injury.

The American people have suffered intolerable wrongs at the hands of the imperial German government, but they desire no reprisal upon the German people, who have themselves suffered all things in this war, which they did not choose. They believe that peace should rest upon the rights of governments—the rights of peoples great or small, weak or powerful—their EQUAL right to freedom and security and self-government, and to a participation upon equality in the economic opportunities of the world—the German people, of course, included, if they will accept equality and not seek domination.

The purpose of the United States in this war is to deliver the world to every people to whom the truth has been permitted to come. They do not need to be stated again. We seek no material advantage of any kind, nor do we believe that the intolerable wrongs done in this war by the furious and brutal power of the imperial German government ought to be repaired but not at the expense of the sovereignty of any people—rather a vindication of the sovereignty both of those that are weak and those that are strong.

Future damages, the dismemberment of empires, the establishment of selfish and exclusive economic leagues, we deem inexpedient and in the end worse than little or no proper basis for a peace of any kind, least of all for an enduring peace. That must be based upon justice and fairness and the common rights of mankind.

We cannot take the word of the present rulers of Germany as a guarantee of anything that is to endure, unless explicitly supported by such conclusive evidence of the wisdom and justice of the German people themselves as the other peoples of the world would be justified in accepting. Without such guarantees, treaty settlements, agreements to set up arbitration in the place of force, territorial adjustments, reconstitutions of small governments, no nation could defend on. We must await some new evidence of the purposes of the great peoples of the central powers, and God grant it may be given soon. In a way to restore the confidence of all peoples everywhere in the faith of nations and the possibility of a covenanted peace.

Secretary of State of the United States of America.

APPEAL TO PRESIDENT

President of Organization Denied Privilege of Meeting in Minnesota—Files Protest at Washington.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Madison, Aug. 28.—Whether Governor Philipp will permit the national conference of peace councils to meet in Milwaukee instead of Minneapolis, will depend much upon the purposes of the meeting. Governor Philipp said he had no official word that the meeting was to be held in Milwaukee, although press dispatches today contain the information.

Philipp May Bar Meeting.
"I will tolerate no meeting in the state of Wisconsin, designed to oppose the purposes of the government," said Governor Philipp today. "No sedition or traitorous talk will be tolerated. On the other hand, there is no objection to the peaceful assembly of citizens to discuss what they believe to be for their vast interests, if done in the right spirit. I mean to observe the constitution in its true sense. If the spirit of the meeting is American, and friendly to American interests, no man can object. No meeting started by agitators, to start dissension against the government of the United States will be allowed. A peaceful assembly of citizens to discuss affairs American, will be permitted."

Protest to President.
Minneapolis, Aug. 28.—Louis P. Lochner, secretary of the People's Council of America, today sent a telegram to President Wilson protesting against the action of Governor Burroughs in issuing a warrant against the holding of a national conference here next week for the announced purpose of discussing peace.

Sheriff Langan of Hennepin county reported to the governor that such a meeting would cause riots and bloodshed. It was said at the council's headquarters here, that information had been received indicating the governors of North Dakota and Wisconsin would permit the meetings to be held in their state.

Mr. Lochner's telegram to the president also appealed for aid and asked if there was "no way in which the right of free speech and peaceful assembly could be secured." Mr. Lochner, who recently promised full police protection to the council, was closeted with Mr. Lochner for two hours today. At the close of the conference he declined to discuss what took place.

RAILROADS BIG PROBLEM FOR RUSSIA

THREATENED DISORGANIZATION OF TRANSPORTATION MUST BE REMEDIED BEFORE NOVEMBER.

GIVE LOYALTY PLEDGES

Representatives of Jews, Ukrainians, Courland and Other Racial Units Heard From at Moscow Conference.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Moscow, Aug. 28.—At the third general sitting of the national conference railway representatives, including M. Froloff of the engineers' alliance, reported that there existed a state of utter disorganization of transportation which unless improved, would cease completely by November. The representatives gave warning that the consequences would be terrible both at home and on the front, and that the army might turn on the country and commit unexampled excesses. The extreme demands of the railway workers, the speaker said, played an important part in this disorganization.

M. Grushevsky speaking as the representative of the Jews, said they loved their country, notwithstanding their unprecedented persecution under the old regime.

The representatives of Ukraine and of western or White Russia, said the people were ready to make any sacrifices for the good of the country. The spokesman of the Letts declared Courland would never belong to Germany.

Delegates representing the Musselman alliance, said all Musselman citizens of Russia fully supported the provisional government.

General Grouzloff, former military governor of Moscow, told the delegates the chief problem was to save Russia from the enemy, and that to this end it was necessary to re-establish army discipline by eliminating politics, strengthening the authority of the leaders, limiting the power of soldiers' committees to economic and giving the commander in chief opportunity to exercise unserved authority.

Ridicule Moscow Conference.
Amsterdam, Aug. 28.—German newspapers are not disposed favorably toward the Moscow conference. "The Cologne Gazette" describes it as the "Comedy of Moscow" adding that it is intended to excite the Russian people to further mad sacrifices. The Russian peasant has to bleed at Government's command and without knowing the government's aims. This is the first of the revolution has given the country."

Deny Report.
Berlin, via London, Aug. 28.—The newspapers deny the report that the reference made by Premier Kerensky in addressing the Moscow conference to a recent offer of a separate peace. Nothing is known of such a move in any official headquarters.

Germany In Turmoil On Reform Question; Criticise Michaelis

Copenhagen, Aug. 28.—The Staats Zeitung of Munich, the organ of the Bavarian government, publishes a Berlin communication against the introduction of a parliamentary regime in Germany as opposed to the federal character of the empire.

The Staats Zeitung declares that all the federal states undoubtedly share the view expressed by the Central speaker in the Reichstag, who said that no party, well-wishers, the chancellor's intention to bring about closer relations between the government and parliament, but it must reject any tampering with the federal character of the empire, and the right of the federal state.

The article says that the Reichstag in its present form, although without the right of parliamentary domination, has met all patriotic requirements. Attacks upon Imperial Chancellor Michaelis continue. In the Prussian Year Book, Prof. Ernst Delbrueck inquires of Dr. Michaelis why he really accepts the Reichstag resolution as the basis of his policy, he neglects to answer the inquiry made on July 26th in the English house of commons by former Premier Asquith regarding Germany's readiness to evacuate and restore Belgium.

Prof. Delbrueck, who openly questions the good faith of the chancellor in professing to agree with the terms of the resolution, asks whether his silence in the face of Mr. Asquith's assurance does not show that there are right who insist that Dr. Michaelis takes another standpoint from that contained in the resolution.

If the German government is ready to conclude peace upon the basis of no annexations and no indemnities, asks the professor, "why all this unprincipled apparatus of joint committees of the Reichstag and Bundesrath to assist the chancellor in drawing up a simple answer to the Pope's proposal of peace on that basis?"

The Reichstag resolution, Prof. Delbrueck concludes, would have had a different effect if it was not believed abroad that the Reichstag is a double-tongued.

In his speech in the house of commons on July 26th, former Premier Asquith declared that Germany was prepared to evacuate Belgium to make reparations and to restore absolute independence to Belgium. He said he would like to know the German answer to these conditions.

BOOST RATE FOR TAXING WAR PROFITS

SENATE FINANCE COMMITTEE AGREES TO AN AMENDMENT RAISING RATE FROM 26 TO 33 PER CENT.

BIG REVENUE INCREASE

Will Nearly Double the War Tax Yield and Will Confiscate to Government Use One-third of War Profits.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Washington, Aug. 28.—To meet the radical movement for greater taxation of war profits, the senate finance committee today agreed to an amendment to the war profits tax law, which would raise the rate from 26 per cent to 33 per cent in place of the present provision for 26 per cent.

The amendment would increase the war profit tax yield from $62,000,000 to $1,000,000,000 in addition to the taxes under the present law and yield a third of the bill's total taxes.

The new maximum rate of the bill was retained by the committee, but it added a new maximum war profit rate of 80 per cent on profits in excess of 300 per cent. The maximum in the bill was 50 per cent on profits more than 250 per cent.

Another substantial change was made in the provision for exemption a minimum of 10 per cent and a maximum of 10 per cent of income on capital actually invested, was approved. These provisions would care for corporations suffering abnormal depression during the pre-war period.

Corporations making less than 4 per cent during that period would be entitled to at least that exemption amount if more than 10 per cent they would receive not over 10 per cent deduction.

Gore and La Follette Absent.
By these changes, the proposed law estimated that the proposed law would take $1,286,000,000 of the $3,000,000,000 or $4,000,000,000 war profit estimated to be earned this year and other people, not prominent in the faction urging more radical war profits action, did not attend today's committee meeting. Chairman Simmons and others of the majority bloc, a new levy—almost doubled—will command sufficient support to cause rejection of the more drastic proposals.

Would Raise Magazine Rates.
Debate on the publishers' taxes was begun by Senator Shields of Tennessee, who supported Senator McKellar's substitute and argued that magazines and other periodicals, not newspapers, cause the deficit in carrying second class mail.

"I am satisfied," he said, "that the daily papers are paying directly all if not the full amount for the service they receive. Rates on magazines and other publications which cause the loss should be increased."

COMPANY "M" SHOWS UP WELL IN PARADE

Camp Douglas, Wis., August 27, 1917.
For once we had a nice Sunday. Instead of rain, wind, etc., yesterday we had sunshine and plenty of it. There were several specials pulling into Camp Douglas during the day. The depot was lined up with civilians and soldiers from early in the morning until late at night. The guards at the station were kept busy watching all the trains and seeing that none of the boys attempted to board the trains without passes.

Last evening we had a battalion parade. It fell on our battalion to take part in the first battalion parade. Companies I, K, L and M were the competitors that took part. We are members of the third battalion. Company K is one of the best drilled companies on the reservation for close order drilling and it is said that their line was the best of any line in the parade and that Company M had the second best line. Company K has had experience on the border and have all seen more service than the members of Company M, or else we would be able to drill as well as they do.

After the boys had returned from drill this morning and as they were preparing for dinner we happened to hear a wedding march in the distance. One of the lieutenants in the artillery company had just had the "fatal" knot tied at this time. The band was playing and every one from far and near were running over to the artillery grounds to see the impressive ceremony. This is the second wedding that has taken place in our regiment since we have been here.

One of the boys in the fourth regiment died suddenly the other morning. He had been so homesick and finally became morose and unbalanced so he left his companions one morning and when they found him he was hanging from the limb of a tree. This is a very sad case, but does not happen very often. In a case like this, if a young lad is homesick it is always best for his pal or one of the boys in the same company to go to him and give him a word of encouragement. We have very few homesick fellows in our company and they seem to be getting along all right. Of course we often think of home, but we try and keep our minds occupied so as to keep from thinking of being homesick.

Captain Caldwell is scheduled for another lecture at the Y. M. C. A. this evening. From our former experience in attending Captain Caldwell's lectures we are assured that he will give us a talk whereby we may profit by this evening. The captain is going to instruct the great number of officers in camp on the new methods of warfare and is planning on handing these men some lessons that they never have heard of before. This is due to the fact that the methods of warfare of the present date are entirely different from those of a few months back.

The members of the fourth regiment seem to be having a good time and are making their homes as comfortable and homelike as possible. They will be likely to stay here longer than we are and consequently they have their streets all decorated with evergreen and burl bark. Company I of the fourth regiment have a large eagle to hang in their cot and another company of the fourth have a small fox. Of course these pets are an awful bother, but they are a means of entertainment and they are a talk whereby we may profit by this evening. The captain is going to instruct the great number of officers in camp on the new methods of warfare and is planning on handing these men some lessons that they never have heard of before. This is the second wedding that has taken place in our regiment since we have been here.

One of the boys in the fourth regiment died suddenly the other morning. He had been so homesick and finally became morose and unbalanced so he left his companions one morning and when they found him he was hanging from the limb of a tree. This is a very sad case, but does not happen very often. In a case like this, if a young lad is homesick it is always best for his pal or one of the boys in the same company to go to him and give him a word of encouragement. We have very few homesick fellows in our company and they seem to be getting along all right. Of course we often think of home, but we try and keep our minds occupied so as to keep from thinking of being homesick.

Captain Caldwell is scheduled for another lecture at the Y. M. C. A. this evening. From our former experience in attending Captain Caldwell's lectures we are assured that he will give us a talk whereby we may profit by this evening. The captain is going to instruct the great number of officers in camp on the new methods of warfare and is planning on handing these men some lessons that they never have heard of before. This is due to the fact that the methods of warfare of the present date are entirely different from those of a few months back.

The members of the fourth regiment seem to be having a good time and are making their homes as comfortable and homelike as possible. They will be likely to stay here longer than we are and consequently they have their streets all decorated with evergreen and burl bark. Company I of the fourth regiment have a large eagle to hang in their cot and another company of the fourth have a small fox. Of course these pets are an awful bother, but they are a means of entertainment and they are a talk whereby we may profit by this evening. "Bob," our mascot, broke loose from the place where he was tied this morning (which happened to be the mail box), left rope, collar and all, and chased down the company street. He is growing like a weed and is beginning to become quite fat. If he is not fed at a certain time every day he begins to howl like sixty.

Yesterday we were issued some straw for our beds and we certainly made good use of our ticks last evening. The tick is about the size of the top of a regulation army cot and consists of heavy canvas doubled and sewed together with a slit of about twenty inches long in the center of one side. In this slit is put the straw and when the tick is filled up there are two strings near this slit which enables one to tie the tick up so the straw will not leak out. This contrivance makes a good substitute for a mattress and our boys will sleep more comfortably now.

The menu for today was as follows:

COMPANY NOTES.
Mechanic Rutledge had quite a scare this morning when unloading some of the boxes of supplies. When strapping a box today so carelessly between a couple of boxes and accidentally exploded. The major came down the street and wanted to know what had happened and Rutledge told him that he had exploded. This is your first offense and so we will overlook it and keep you out of the guard house.

A great number of passes were made out for Company "M" yesterday, about twenty in all. A good many of the boys entertained mothers, friends and sweethearts from home.

few ways, but he is soon over that and is soon working hard for Uncle Sam.

We are now busy preparing our "Fall" list. This list is a list of all the names of the boys who have been in the service and who are now in the service. It will be his duty and privilege to keep the soldier at the front fully informed as to local news, and to write a letter to his soldier's pal as he goes. We are now busy preparing our "Fall" list. Also keeping in mind that all articles of clothing and small comforts are not all furnished by Uncle Sam. This is a very nice plan of the men back home and we will soon have our list ready to send back to Janesville.

Three prisoners from the guard house are working nearby on the wood pile. A guard is detailed to watch over them and keep them working. Here's a tip to the boys: keep a clean sheet and never have a man in the guard house.

WHY NOT ORGANIZE MINUTE MEN'S CORPS TO SAVE THE CROPS

Suggestion Has Been Made That Business and Professional Men of City Help Farmers.

Lack of labor on the farms is liable to cause a considerable loss of what would otherwise be a banner year on many farms in Rock county. With corn and tobacco held back and need of all the laboring hands to be put to insure a good crop, in some localities a fall one, a sudden frost would work serious damage and growers would sustain a loss that might be avoided if sufficient help was at hand to harvest the crops.

It has been suggested that business and professional men of Janesville organize as Minute Men against an invading foe, they garb themselves in working clothes and go into the harvest fields to help save the crops.

The idea is that every citizen who would be willing to aid in this crop conservation should register his name at the secretary's office of the Commercial club. This registration means that he would be called on in case of danger from frost, to work in the harvest fields to help save the crops.

When it is danger came, frost was predicted they could be summoned just as the Minute Men of the revolution. Any day were when the red coats marched out of Boston and make a flank attack upon Jack Frost in danger spots where individual farmers could not obtain help and otherwise would suffer heavy loss if his corn and tobacco was caught by a nipping frost.

The first report of a frost was imminent would bring these recruits to the danger zone, and a few hours' work by a party of earnest men would wonder. The farmer who needed the aid would be glad to have the help at the Commercial club, he would notify his "Minute Men," and they would be off, a flying squadron, as it were.

Many will laugh at the thought of some staid banker, or lawyer, or merchant or manufacturer working in a field, but a good many of them began to think of the way and would be glad to help. The idea is that every citizen who would be willing to aid in this crop conservation should register his name at the secretary's office of the Commercial club. FOOTBALL STAR NOW A SKILLED "ACE"

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
With the French Armies, Aug. 29.—Sergeant Boyau, former Rugby football player and champion of France, who has just attained the rank of an "ace" by bringing down his fifth German airplane, has the added distinction of being the foremost "sausage specialist" of the French aviation.

Boyau has the same number of "sauses" or German observation balloons, to his credit as he has aeroplanes.

To the superficial observer, the winging of a huge, stationary and defenseless "sausage" would appear like a simple task in comparison with that of triumphing over a fast-flying, aeroplanes, armed with machine-guns and manned by a daring aviator full of fight. In reality the "sausage" is the bigger and harder job of the two.

In the first place, "sauses" are only sent up miles behind the enemy's lines. An attack against them means a long flight into enemy territory and a battle above the enemy's lines. "Sauses" only mount to an altitude of several hundred feet, and the attack must therefore take place within those miles of the enemy's lines. The principal defense of an observation balloon.

The "sausage" again are attached to the earth by thin wire cables that are invisible to the attacking aviator. If he flies into one of these aerial snags the most dangerous kind occurs.

The efficacy of these cables in keeping off aviators is demonstrated by the fact that one of the principal aerial defenses of the Krupp factories at Essen consists properly of a large number of uncoupled balloons strung down at a great height so that aviators seeking to bomb the Krupp are almost certain to fly into one of the steel anchoring cables.

Boyau, who now has five "sauses" to his credit, only succeeded in getting into the aviation service during the latter part of 1916 after two years in the trenches. During December of that year he distinguished himself by a number of daring attacks over Verdun but only succeeded in bringing down his first foe in March of this year.

A few days later he successfully bombed some hangars far behind the German lines. It was on this trip that Boyau conceived a method for attacking "sauses" and at once planned his career as a "sausage specialist."

He successfully destroyed the first one he attacked, the balloon dropping in flames, and he landed immediately for a second one. This he missed but the "sausage" observer was so badly frightened that he leaped from the observation car in his parachute.

On June 3 he brought down another "sausage." During the attack his motor went wrong and he was obliged to alight in the enemy's lines for repairs. The repairs were effected under the full fire of all the anti-aircraft machine guns in the vicinity. Boyau retaking the air and crossing back into the French lines at an altitude of only a few feet, he landed in German bombardment. He received the Médaille Militaire for this.

June 24 witnessed the death of another "sausage," but in returning from the funeral Boyau found himself in the midst of five Boche airplanes. He brought down one, succeeded in disengaging another French airplane that had been surrounded by Boches and got safely back to the French lines.

Boyau brought down his fifth airplane over Nancy on July 13, after still more successful "sausage" attacks.

It is one of a whole series of French sport champions, including Corporal Decoin, the Olympic swimmer, and Lapize, the cyclist, who have made wonderful records in French aviation.

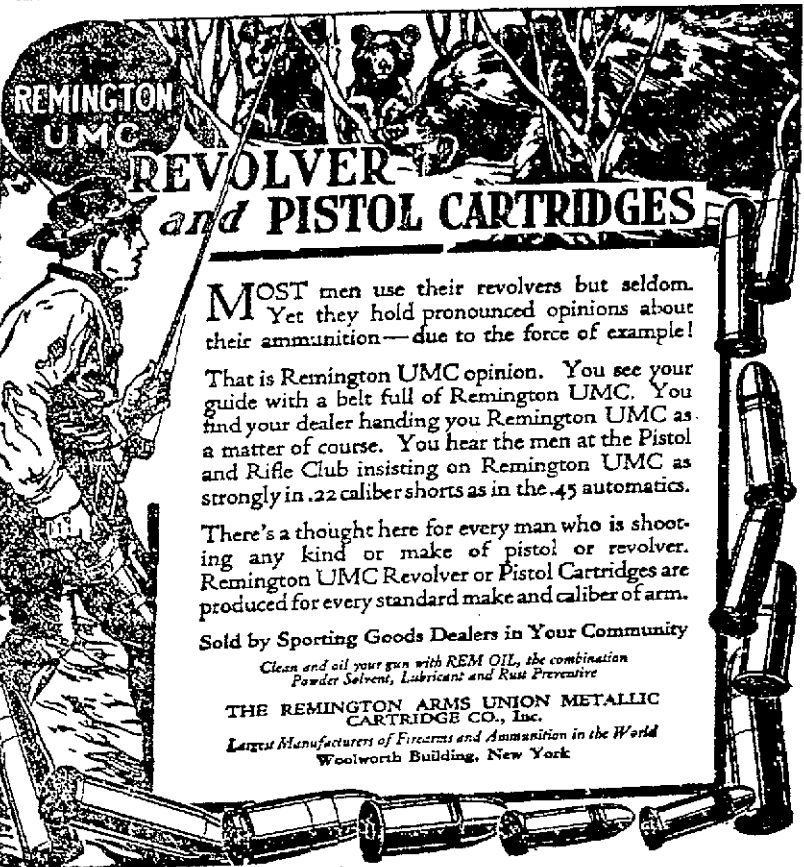

Azrael, which means in Hebrew "the help of God." In the Jewish and Mohammedan mythology was the name of an angel that watches over the dying and separates the soul from the body.

SISLER IS MODEL BASEBALL PLAYER

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
St. Louis, Aug. 29.—Polder Jones, manager of the St. Louis Americans, considers George Sisler, his youthful first base star, the "perfect ball player."

"Sisler can do anything Cobb or Speaker, or any other player can do," Jones said. "He can hit as far as anybody, field as fast as anybody, and is a dandy of lightning on the bases. What more can you add?"

They say that Sisler is the most modest player in either major league. He neither smokes, drinks or chews. Sisler is a star with the bat, but injured his thumb tagging a player a few weeks ago and the injury was so painful that he had difficulty in gripping the club. But with the sprain entirely healed, Sisler expects to be clubbing his way up near the top of the American league list of hitters.

IOWA TO COMPLETE FOOTBALL SCHEDULE

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Ames, Ia., Aug. 29.—Ideal training for a prospective soldier is provided in athletics in the opinion of Clyde Williams, director of athletics at Iowa State (Ames) College, and this he believed especially true of football.

"We are going to have athletics this fall and winter if we have to go in the hole financially for every contest we enter," Williams said.

Completion of the football schedule has enabled Williams to devote his attention to survey of the football situation, getting a line on the probable material Coach Charles Mays will have at his command this fall. Mays is expected to return to Ames about September 1, and this will give him two weeks to get acquainted with the situation before school opens.

Enlistments in the fighting forces of the country and graduation have taken a number of last year's stars, and even Captain-elect Denfeld may be lost to the 1917 eleven. It is said, although he has not definitely announced his plans.

Graduation took four good men—Packer, Sloss, Jones and Perkins. Davis and Paige have entered military and the latter in the aviation corps. Janda received a commission at the Port Snelling, Minn., officers' training camp. There is some uncertainty as to the plans of several others.

Five of the eight games scheduled for this fall will be played on the state field at Ames. From the standpoint of attendance, the annual Drake-Ames contest Nov. 29, to be played at Des Moines, promises to be a winner, as thousands of football devotees will be at the Camp Dodge cantonment there.

The season's schedule follows:
Sept. 29—Simpson at Ames.
Oct. 6—Coe College at Ames.
Oct. 13—Missouri at Ames.
Oct. 27—Kansas University at Lawrence.
Nov. 10—Kansas Aggies at Ames.
Nov. 17—Teachers' College at Ames.
Nov. 24—Iowa University at Iowa City.
Nov. 29—Drake at Des Moines.

LARGE ENTRY LIST FOR A. A. U. EVENTS

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 29.—Letters from all parts of the country carrying entry blanks for the National Amateur Athletic Union track and field championship events to be held here Aug. 31 to September 3, have been 3,000.

Tom Watt, director in chief of the approaching games.

The Denver Athletic club sent the entry blanks to Charles C. Gunther, the leading sprinter of the Rocky Mountain district of the A. A. U. Gunther asked to be entered in the 100 and 220 yard dashes in both the junior and senior trials.

From Toronto, Canada, came the entry blank of George Goulding, a walking champion, who holds many heel and toe records. Goulding is entered in the three mile walk, senior division.

A third letter was from the Logan Square Athletic club, Chicago, and contained a note from C. L. Meller, a distance runner of note, who asked that he be entered in the walking events. Many other entry blanks have been received.

Unless the New York Athletic club rescinds its action forbidding its track stars to compete in the meet under the Mercury Foot banner, it may be forced to abandon track athletics for all time. News of the rebellion of the N. Y. A. C. team over the action of the anti-athletic clan of the club was received here from James Lincoln, one of the greatest javelin throwers in the land and a prominent member of the Gotham club. Lincoln writes that he has resigned. His action was followed by two other top-notchers of the team—Earl Remer, national seven mile walking champion, and John Fritts, a distance runner. Similar action, it is said, will be taken by a score of others.

MACK LOOKS FOR CHICAGO TO WIN

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Cleveland, O., Aug. 29.—Connie Mack, famous as a builder of championship teams in the American league, frankly admitted he is puzzled as regards picking the winner of this season's race.

"It looks like a horse and a horse to me," Mack said when asked whether he thought Chicago would beat out Boston. "Each club in a good I cannot make a choice. Boston is a great money team and has not failed to deliver when it had to win the last two or three seasons. But Chicago is batting better and seems to have the more powerful punch of late."

Prejudice.
We can forgive any man his prejudices—provided they don't conflict with ours.—Life.

Age brings a man knowledge of many things he would rather not know.

Sport Snap Shots

Although a discredited to the profession that made him, Jack Johnson was undeniably a wonderful piece of fighting machinery. It is a matter of opinion as to who was the greatest lightweight of all time. But many believe little Joe Gans, the dusky lad from Baltimore, was without his equal, all things—generalship, science, speed and hitting qualities—considered.

It is little wonder then that Carl Morris and Fred Fulton, the two massive heavyweights, who tangle in a fifteen round bout at Canton on Labor day for the privilege of meeting Champion Jess Willard later for the title, should number among their trainers and trainers a negro heavyweight of prominence.

Harry Wills, the big 220-pounder in Fulton's camp, has held his own with some of the best negro heavyweights in the world. He has decisions to his credit over Sam Langford, Sam McVey and has held his own with Joe Jeannette. On two different occasions in important fights Wills had Langford beaten, and in one round had the Boston tar baby all but out, only to let overconfidence get the better of him.

It was Joe Jeannette who gave Morris his first actual lessons in the ring. Joe took hold of the big fellow shortly after he gave up his seat in the engine cab and announced his "white hop" intentions to the wide, wide world. It was Joe who taught the big fellow how to use his left hand, and it was he who enabled Morris to perfect what is probably the best defense any heavyweight in the game today possesses.

None will deny that Jeannette, in his prime was a remarkable fighter. His long list of battles includes triumphs over many formidable opponents. One of his notable victories was a knockout scored over Sam McVey in forty-nine rounds. He gave Jack Johnson many a merry tussle.

It will be interesting to watch the effects of Wills' system and the Jeannette system when Morris and Fulton meet.

The St. Louis Browns may get the service of two players who were to come to them from the Portland Beavers. They are Bill Fincher, re-called under option, and Kenneth Williams, purchased. Both players were caught in the draft.

Bobby Wallace, who has seen them all come and go, has taken a great fancy to Rogers Hornsby since joining the St. Louis Cardinals. Wallace is credited with saying that Hornsby is one of the best natural hitters he ever saw, barring none in his twenty years of knowing them.

First Baseman Ray Miller, formerly of Cleveland, who recently jumped the Oakland club, has been reinstated and disposed of to the Pittsburgh Pirates. Miller decided to take a fine put outlay ball in the copper country, but soon repented of it.

Pitcher Al Bonner, who has seen service in a number of leagues, and was in the Northwestern league until it disbanded this season, has joined the marine corps and already is in service. Following the close of the Northwestern he pitched for an independent team in Dillon, Mont., before enlisting for the war.

The Pirates now have three St. Louis boys on their club—Max Carey, Charley Ward and Charley Jackson. And the Pirates probably would be a better ball club today if they had kept another one—Douglas Baird.

They say that once Hugo Bezdek, on sustaining two broken ribs in a football game for Chicago University, put a wash ball in the boiler cover under his jersey and finished the game. He must be a real rough guy, with no place in professional baseball, where a player takes a rest if he loses a toe nail.

The Boston Braves took on Jack Meyers when Walter Traverser got notice that he had been called in the draft. His order was to report to his home town at Lafayette, Ind., immediately for examination, but he asked youngsters here and there. One of them, if Traverser goes Stallings will have only youngster Rico and Meyers to do his backstopping.

BALANCE OF POWER BETWEEN LEAGUES

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
New York, Aug. 28.—If Boston wins the American League pennant, baseball followers in the east believe John McGraw will have to wait for his second world's championship. But, if Chicago snags the Johnson flag, they deduce, Charles Comiskey will have to wait for his second world's championship.

At the same time it is the feeling that the Red Sox have skidded and the White Sox gained some strength. The difference between the two clubs now, it is generally asserted, is very close.

The answer is generally held out that the Red Sox are made up more closely as a unit of playing strength, whereas they are inclined to charge the Chicagoans with dull baseball at times.

The balance in a world's series will have to be a matching of powerful National league hitting against powerful American league pitching.

In the past it has been pretty thoroughly demonstrated that powerful pitching carries the edge in a short series. Witness the startling success of the Braves in 1914, the following success of the Red Sox against the Phillies in 1915 and the Dodgers in 1916. Athletics, Dodgers and Phillies were noted for their terrible hitting, but the star heavies of the opposing clubs were fully competent to put over the necessary victories.

It has been proven the White Sox are greatly handicapped when against southern burling, and it is from this angle that McGraw has built up his greatest pitching defense. Schupp, Sallee and Benton, the most successful New York runners, work with their off-hands. Whether they would be able to offset the efforts of Faber, Clotte, Williams and Russell is the point from where arguments will start.

LOOMS UP AS JINX FOR MATTY'S REDS

The Giant trio of southern stars isn't feared as strong as Ruth, Shaw, Mays and Foster.

From all appearances, Bob Steele, recently acquired by the Pittsburgh Pirates from the St. Louis Cardinals, Ego Alexander and Watson, seems to have the number of the Cincinnati Reds. Steele has gone the full route in two games against Cincinnati this season and each time scored a win.

Fifty-eight per clock-tick

Every time the clock ticks, fifty-eight Fatimas are lighted somewhere in the United States. No other high-grade cigarette has so many unchanging, unswerving friends.

This shows that men do appreciate cigarette-comfort.

For, comfort is perhaps the chief reason for Fatima's big popularity—comfort while you smoke, and better yet, after you smoke, even though you may smoke the whole day through.

The Fatima Turkish blend is so carefully balanced that it has none of the after-effects of heavier, less skilfully blended tobaccos. That's why Fatimas are comfortable (hence, sensible)—as your first package will prove.

COUNTY PRODUCES BIG GRAIN YIELDS TO HELP WIN WAR

Early Reports From Threshers Indicate Bumper Crops of Oats, Barley and Rye.

The call of the federal government to the farmers to speed up production in order to meet the war demands on the nation's granaries and store-houses did not fall upon deaf ears in Rock county. As the result of a patriotic determination to do their bit, coupled with a favorable season for small grain, the production of oats, barley and rye in the county will break all records if the early returns from the threshers can be taken as a criterion.

Oats are yielding from 50 to 70 bushels to the acre, barley from 30 to 60 bushels, while rye and wheat are also turning out better than the average. Norman Howard, one of the large grain growers of the eastern part of the county, raised 8,000 bushels of oats and barley from 120 acres, and D. J. McLaughlin's production of barley was around 4,000 bushels.

A farmer living west of Janesville reports that five acres of rye yielded 190 bushels, an exceptional amount; and another farmer had two acres of spring wheat which returned 47 bushels to the acre.

Threshing is in progress in nearly every locality and the dry weather has been favorable to the work, allowing the grain to be stored without discoloration caused by rain. Several more weeks should see the bulk of the grain threshed. With prices still holding to high levels, farmers will realize higher returns on their small grain than have ever been recorded.

While the prolonged drought is showing on some corn fields, there is still a chance for a fairly good crop in the county, according to L. A. Mar-ham, county agricultural agent, who is keeping in touch with conditions.
A majority of fields are in good shape and promise good yields. Late potato crops and tobacco are more in need of rain than the corn.

Mr. Marham is planning on a demonstration on the value of commercial fertilizers which will be held within the next few weeks. Various kinds of fertilizers were used on corn ground this year on the farms of Bert A. Clark, John Clark and David McNeely, for the purpose of testing out their value and the results have been most illuminating. In the case of certain fertilizers the corn has grown a foot taller and in progress toward maturity is three weeks ahead of corn planted at the same time but without fertilizer. The results of the experiment will be classified and will be fully explained at the demonstration to the profit of Rock county farmers.

RACE LEADERSHIP AT STAKE SUNDAY

Watertown Will Play at the Fair Grounds Sunday—Locals May Play Fort Atkinson Labor Day.

All followers of the teams in the Central State League will have their eyes on the result of the game between Janesville and Watertown Sunday. The game will be played at the Janesville Fair grounds and the outcome will depend on the chances of the other teams to finish well up in the race. A victory for the locals will give them first place in the league.
A telegram received today from the president of the league states that the league officials have decided that the two best teams between Janesville and Fort Atkinson must be played in the near future. As both Janesville and Fort Atkinson will be in the running for the title, the game will be one of the most important of the season. One of the two games to be played is a postponed contest while the other game will be necessary due to the game of several weeks ago when the Janesville and Watertown played a 3 to 3 game.

Fort Atkinson has made offers to Janesville to play a double header on Saturday and Sunday, but the local managers, Langdon and Kuhn, want one of the games played on the Fair Grounds. The Fort officials have made a flattering offer to the Janesville team if they will play these games.

Manager Kuhn is looking forward to a victory on Sunday and is expecting a large following of fans. The Janesville team is expected to play the Watertown game on Sunday and the managers fairly well in a financial way. This Sunday the regular admission of twenty-five cents will be charged.

OUTLINE PURPOSES OF LOYALTY LEGION FOR UNITY IN WAR

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Milwaukee, Aug. 28.—At a meeting of the executive committee of the Loyalty Legion in Milwaukee on Tuesday, the purposes of the society were clearly outlined to be to secure unity of front on the part of the people of the state with regard to the nation's war aims. In a declaration it reviews the causes for the war and indicates the plain duty of American citizens. The new society practically takes over the work of the Wisconsin Defense League.

The declaration sets forth in the following terms the attitude of the United States in its war with Germany:

1. It has ruthlessly murdered not only American men, but American women and children on the high seas.

2. It has sunk our ships and destroyed our property in utter disregard of the rights secured to us both by treaty and by international law.

3. It has abused our country with spies to secretly injure us.

4. It has by dishonorable means encouraged our citizens of German birth to prefer the interests of Germany, which they abandoned, to those of their adopted country, which gave them freedom and opportunity without limit.

5. It has abused the privileges according to its diplomatic and consular representatives by fomenting through them plots resulting in destruction of our factories, and killing the men employed therein.

6. It has sought to form a combination of other nations to make war upon us, with promises of territory of which we were to be despoiled.

Purpose of League.
In a general way, the Loyalty Legion declares that it objects to the people of Wisconsin in loyal, active and efficient support of the government. Specifically the purposes of the organization are set forth in the preamble to its constitution, as follows:

To develop and maintain the fighting strength of the nation until victory is assured.

To hasten the training and dispatch of our troops to Europe.

To protect our soldiers in the field against the attack of enemies at home.

To bring traitors to punishment, hold up slackers to public contempt, and oppose disloyalty and dissension wherever it may appear and however disguised.

To assist the government in its food conservation policy and all other measures inaugurated to maintain the health, welfare and comfort of our soldiers and our people.

To oppose all efforts to obtain exorbitant profits at the expense of the nation or the consoling of our people in the words of President Wilson, "for every dollar that is taken from the people's pockets, it shall be possible to obtain a dollar's worth of the good stuffs they need."

Duty of Americans.
"We have been declared," says the preamble, "it is the duty of every American to stand back of our government, loyally and enthusiastically, and to aid it in its efforts to cooperate effectively with our allies to win the war, to make the world safe for democracy, and to put an end to the attempts of the Hohenzollern autocracy at world dominion, to guarantee the freedom and territorial integrity of the smaller nations against the aggressions of their larger neighbors, to obtain reparation for Belgium and Serbia for the unnumbered wrongs committed against them by the German government, and to put an end to the policy of international terrorism, to secure general disarmament and the basis of a permanent peace by the agreement of a sufficient number of world powers to compel the necessary settlement of disputes between nations."

"We must not forget that the fight is between democracy and autocracy, and that the winner will rule the world; that if we lose the war in Europe, we must meet it at home; that for more than forty years our enemy

it wages war utterly regardless of all precepts of civilization or dictates of humanity; that if it wins, it will exact crushing indemnities from the vanquished, and will enforce its im-ment thereof with savage rapacity; that to win the war will require the utmost efforts of which our people are capable, and to lose it will imperil our national independence."

proach the policy of the pro-German allegiance to this country, and for the benefit of the benefits secured to them by its citizenship, foment a spirit of disloyalty, place a false construction sult only in our injury and Germany's benefit."

has received word that agents are of-paying a fair price to growers and who are in no way connected with the movement which is alleged to have as its object a cornering of the mar-

UNCLE IKE TO TAKE TRIP TO BIRTH PLACE

(By Associated Press)
Marquette, Wis., Aug. 29.—Former Senator Isaac Stephenson will not take his usual fishing trip along the Escanaba river this year because the fishing in this famous trout stream has been spoiled, the result of mining refuse being poured into the stream. Instead of the fishing trip the senator accompanied by members of his family and Tom Field, editor of the Appleton Post, plan on leaving Wednesday evening for a three weeks' trip to his birthplace near Fredericton, New Brunswick, and other points in Canada and the east. The party will stop at Boston, Montreal, Quebec and St. Johns, N. B.

The members of the family who will accompany the former senator are his daughter, Mrs. Joshua Hodgins; his grandson, I. W. Stephenson; his niece, Miss Bertha Baker; and Fred Hatchinson of Marquette.

TELLS OF AWFUL HUN LABOR CONDITIONS

(Special to the Gazette)
Stockholm, Sweden, Aug. 29.—A Swede has just returned from six weeks' work in a German munition factory at Torgau with a most distressing tale of the condition of the workers there including some French, Belgian and Russian prisoners forced to labor in the shops. The Swede was lured into Germany by a German named Biltzing, who had been recruiting labor in Sweden and Denmark for German munition factories. Biltzing promised the Swede ten marks a day, with only two marks deducted for board and room, and railroad fare. He accepted and on the two days' trip to Torgau the entire food was two sandwiches.

The meals and lodgings were unbearable, the Swede said. For breakfast they had two thin slices of bread and imitation coffee. Midday dinner consisted of sauerkraut and potatoes and at supper they had only sauerkraut, which was mostly water. At tea time in the afternoon they had in addition two more slices of bread without coffee. Their lodgings were in the pit of an unused theater, where thirty-two workmen were barracked. In bunk beds they were crowded together. The railroad fare was deducted from his first two weeks' wages and he was told it would not be refunded or the return ticket paid for unless he worked three months. He was forced to work on Sundays and was treated as brutally as the war prisoners.

After six weeks the Swede and two others pawned their spare clothes, escaped by stealth and made their way back to Sweden, where they are warning their fellow workers to accept no German labor offers.

RUSSIAN SOCIETY LEADER WOUNDED IN EFFORT TO STEM FLAV RETREAT

Mme. Skrydlova, Russian society leader and lieutenant to Mme. The picture shows her as a society matron. Before entering the Battalion of Death she was required to cut off her beautiful hair and don a suit of 'chaki'.

OLD SOLDIERS' PLEA FALLS ON DEAF EARS

A bent and shabbily dressed old man came forward when Judge Maxwell told him that an old soldier ought to go to the Soldiers' Home instead of loafing around the streets. Old Jim made a well rehearsed plea for a chance to leave town, but the judge had heard his "swan song" before and imposed a ninety day sentence.

Tom Flood did not make good his chance to behave himself that Judge Maxwell gave him when he appeared charged with being drunk. Donohue before him on June 15th. Flood had no alibi to offer for his falling off the wagon, so the judge gave him a nine months' sentence for his second offense.

TROLLING.

My Dear Buck:
After a few hours casting, when your rod begins to feel like a piece of lead, just slip into an easy position and take a little whirl at trolling, besides resting up your casting arm and putting it to shape for a double-header in the afternoon, you stand a mighty good chance of landing some fine fish with the least amount of exertion up to the actual period of fighting the fish. Trolling is sure the lazy fisherman's delight and the fat man's preference.

Braided Lines Best.
The best line for trolling is the braided silk or linen, as the twisted lines cannot be used successfully on account of the kinking caused by the twisting and turning of the line, which cannot altogether be avoided. In assembling your rig for trolling don't be afraid to use swivels; they help keep the line from twisting. In rigging up the spoon hook for trolling, which is the most commonly used, loop the line on a swivelled wire leader, a six or eight inch one is plenty long enough, and at the end of the leader snap on the spoon, which for ordinary fishing for wall-eyed pike, or bass should not be larger than a No. 3, while for pike, pickerel or musky a No. 4 to No. 6 is plenty large enough. One of the big mistakes in using the trolling spoon is to select a No. 12 in the single spoon or a No. 10 in the tandem style, with a bunch of feathered hooks on the end large enough to scare any fish on first sight. Some of the finest musky and pike have been caught on a little old No. 3 spoon with a shiner or pork rind fluttering on the hook. Take a No. 6 single spoon or a No. 4 tandem with a nice-sized black sucker, chub or shiner hooked behind, and you have an ideal pike or musky trolling rig. Top this off with a small piece of red flannel right in front of the bait, and they sure cannot resist it.

Troll Deep for Bass.
When the bass have left the shore waters for the cooler deep water and you have failed to coax them up with the cast, just locate a bar, twenty or thirty feet under water and take a shot at trolling for them with a bronze-colored underwater minnow. Take the small size, about a two-inch minnow, let out about 75 feet of line, and troll deep. For clear water use the bronze or copper color, and for dull days try the aluminum. For an artificial, this little old bait is sure a winner. A mud minnow, frog or pork rind strip with a little red yarn and a No. 3 spoon makes a trolling outfit that looks good to the bass.

There is one little angle to the trolling game that some of the sure-enough fishermen have overlooked, and that is to troll with flies for bass. Take a nine-foot gut leader, loop on three flies, slip three split-shot sinkers, about No. 1, on the leader three feet apart to keep the flies one or two feet below the surface, and troll along very slowly and quietly. Let out 25 yards of line and strike right after the bass strikes. A good combination of flies for trolling is the Coachman, Silver Doctor and the red or brown Hackle. Trolling with flies for bass might be called the highest art of that end of the fishing game, as it requires more skill and attention than the ordinary run of trolling.

Cut Out the Speed.
In trolling for musky, pike or pickerel 75 to 100 feet of line is plenty to run out behind the boat. At this distance the lure is far enough away from the boat and the line is easier handled in landing the fish. The boat should make about two to three miles an hour, which is speed enough to keep the spoon turning and at the same time give the fish a chance to see your bait. Always troll with your rod straight out behind the boat, never out the side at a right angle; this is treatment any fishing rod would resent. A mighty good thing for the rod is to use a steel rod shortener, which gives you a dandy trolling rod for about 20 cents. Just slip out the first joint, put the shortener in the grip, the second joint in the shortener, and you run no chances with your bait-casting rod. One big point to remember in trolling with a spoon is the fact that a spoon must be spinning around in order to flash under water and attract the fish. If you will keep your eye on the rod tip occasionally you can easily tell whether the spoon is turning around by the steady bobbing of the tip. When it quits bobbing you'd better reel in and clean off the weeds. A hookful of weeds is not much inducement for a fish to strike.

For wall-eyed pike put a dipsey sinker on your rig and troll deep, and if you get a strike, troll back and forth over the same water, as they feed in schools. A fine artificial bait for the wall-eye is the underwater Dowagiac with the green mottled back and white belly.

News Notes from Movieland

—BY DAISY DEAN—

Mildred Harris, who will be in her teens for a couple of years yet, anyway, will appear as the star in two important photoplays which will be released by Loews Weber. The cast for the first play, which has not yet been titled, included besides Miss Harris such well known players as Kenneth Harlan, Helen Ross, Gertrude Astor, Adele Hampton and Alfred Allen. Screen rights have been secured on the Mary Roberts Rinehart story, entitled "K," and this is now being adapted for the screen by Miss Weber while Phillips Smalley is engaged in securing players for the production. True Boardman, it is announced, will play the title role and Ken Harlan will be given an important part. Mildred Harris is to continue as leading woman in this subject.

NORMA WILL GET PLAYS FROM BOOKS

Norma Talmadge is so pleased with the reception of her recent photodrama, "Poppy," that she has decided that hereafter all of her pictures shall be adapted from books. In line with this decision she has completed a screen version of William Dana Orcutt's book, "The Moth," and will begin shortly on "The Secret of the Storm Country," based on Grace Miller White's story of that title. Novels generally make good photoplays because the cinema is narrative rather than dramatic. Another thing that contributes to the popularity of pictures based on books is that if a book has had a wide circulation there are frequently many persons who are anxious to have the story retold to them in the new form.

BANDIT ROLE FOR W. S. HART

William S. Hart has begun work on the first photoplay of a new series. Mr. Hart is once more a bandit who reforms, a girl on a stage coach he holds up, being the goodness from the machine re-

Whitewater News

Whitewater, Aug. 28.—The brick paving on Main street has been delayed on account of the inability of the contractors to get help to wheel bricks to the layers. Part of the men quit Monday because they did not get a raise from 30 cents to 35 cents an hour. Anxious to see the work go on and that the piles of brick might be gotten off the sidewalks, the young business men and clerks on Main street started a bee yesterday afternoon and for a time nearly buried the layers with bricks. The stronger fellows did the wheeling while others loaded the wheelbarrows, and others did some brick laying. It was hard work, but it was kept up until six o'clock and there was a tired bunch of fellows not wanting to go on the job again this morning.

GET AFTER DODGERS OF AUTO LICENSES

Madison, Wis., Aug. 29.—The campaign that is being conducted by Secretary of State William W. Harrison, on a dealer's license, owners of automobiles who have neglected to take out licenses is productive of results.

"As the result of this campaign we have already found 40 people whose cars were not properly licensed," said Secretary of State Harrison today. "From the rate these reports are coming in it would seem that in the course of a year the entire expense of the automobile department in the secretary's office would be paid."

A law passed by the last session of the legislature gives the secretary of state power to direct the inspectors of other departments to watch for automobiles without licenses, or operating unlawfully on dealers' licenses. Through the dairy and food department, the oil inspector's office and independent agents the campaign was launched.

One dairy and food inspector found a Milwaukee man touring in northern Wisconsin on a dealer's license. A letter from Secretary of State Harrison brought in the money. Another inspector working in Green Bay, found seven such persons in one day. From all reports it has got to be such easy picking that there is rivalry among the different inspectors to see who can discover the largest number of license violators.

One man in Milwaukee who was jerked up by the secretary of state said he was willing to pay the license fee but he did hope the secretary "would furnish the name of the man who squealed on me."

The dealers of the state are now co-operating with the secretary of state's office. Men living in northwestern Wisconsin are found with Minnesota licenses. All of these violations are being rapidly reported.

Heart and Home Problems

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am engaged to a young college man who has been going with a good many girls as college boys do and now we are engaged I would like to have him quit going with these other girls and devote all his attention to me. It seems to me that if I am not happy, he doesn't do it now he never will. He seems to think that is all right for him to go with others and at the same time he objects to my going with an old sweetheart. I am a young woman who has returned to this city after several years' stay in the country. I am not jealous, but I do not know whether to consider this young man's behavior as dangerous to our future happiness or not. Would you insist on his leaving the other girls alone? If I insisted hard enough or threatened not to marry him, he would not do it.

It seems to me that if you talk to him and show him that you are doubtful about the future, he will get him to let the other girls alone. Show him that it is not because you are jealous, but that you are worried for fear you will not be happy, and say that if you are too doubtful, you will have to break the engagement. Show him that you love him enough to be thinking about his future as well as your own. If he still thinks that he cannot get along without his former girls and sweethearts, it would not be best for you to marry him, or at least it would be well to wait a little while until his love for you alone asserts itself. It would not do for you to wait to go with your old sweetheart, and to object when he does it. You are wise in thinking about the future before plunging into married life.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I used to go with a nice crowd of fellows here in town, but since the war these young men have all enlisted or joined training camps, and it has left me with not a single boy friend to go with. I am used to going out with a crowd of fellows, and I feel very blue since all my friends have gone and I don't know what to do.

(1) What do you think I can do to get the social life I need now?

(2) I have some nice girl friends. Do you think I am rude not to have more to do with them?

CAPRICE.

(1) The fact that you are so lonely, some without continuing interest, shows that you have not been interested in more serious things that a girl ought to be interested in. Why don't you take up some Red Cross project or at yourself for the serious work that the women left behind will have to do? The young men are being taken from the factories and business offices and it is up to the young women to fill their places as much as possible. If you did this you would not feel so blue, but would be happy to be helping.

(2) If you associated more with girls and less with boys.

German Lies About the Kaiser's Kind Treatment of the Workingmen Find No Believer in Eleanor

"Aunt Laura, what was 'done about' about it?" asked Aunt Laura. "What happened to you there studying in Germany, and he came away with his views utterly changed. He took no one's word for anything, but saw for himself and the result was that he believed the workingmen of England and France are far better off than those of Germany. He did not study conditions in Italy, Spain or Russia. The workingman's pension in England is far more liberal than in Germany. The men work shorter hours and get higher wages. Bartram asked one of the educated German men with whom he associated statistics he had compiled were true and the German said: 'Surely, that fact explains why we are distancing England in the commercial race.'"

"I thought you said he was not a German sympathizer?" interrupted Eleanor.

"I said he was not of German descent, even so, I could not suppose he would be a German sympathizer. It seems he is a strong German admirer and the reign of frightfulness has not been enough to kill that admiration. What is it he so admires?" asked Eleanor in scornful tones.

"Oh, their care for the workingman; their old age pensions and care of the sick."

"How does he know all this? Has he been to Germany?"

"No. He gets his information just by reading, I suppose."

"It is an instance of the old saying: 'Set down your value at your own height and the world will pay it.' Germans have loudly proclaimed that their workingmen were better cared for than any other people and now they are opening their eyes and swallowing down the talk whole. It is past comprehending how a boast will travel around the world while the truth is putting on its shoes, especially if the boast is a falsehood. Eleanor paused for breath. 'I myself used to how before German efficiency till Bartram opened my eyes.'

"Bartram! What does he know about it?" asked Aunt Laura. "What happened to you there studying in Germany, and he came away with his views utterly changed. He took no one's word for anything, but saw for himself and the result was that he believed the workingmen of England and France are far better off than those of Germany. He did not study conditions in Italy, Spain or Russia. The workingman's pension in England is far more liberal than in Germany. The men work shorter hours and get higher wages. Bartram asked one of the educated German men with whom he associated statistics he had compiled were true and the German said: 'Surely, that fact explains why we are distancing England in the commercial race.'"

"That they are efficient. The way they have carried on the war proves that," objected Aunt Laura.

"Certainly! They are efficient in this way. Every man in the empire is used to the best advantage of the Kaiser, and this was the case before the war just as truly as it is today. These old age pensions are not paid, and all those who receive them are sixty-five and a person must live fifteen years to get back the money that he has paid in taxes. These figures were taken from governmental statistics, so they are correct. You see the pensions are pitifully small, not enough to keep a person, if the pensioner lives with his relatives. He gets help toward his support; if he has no relatives he goes to the poor house and the government pays the pension. It is really an insurance for the government."

"Why that—"

"Large families are encouraged among the poor that the army may be furnished with soldiers. The Kaiser's 'cancer' is a large family. One professor's wife said to Bartram, 'Oh, but the workingman!' he objected, 'Oh, certainly; that is necessary for the army, as the answer. And that is the sort of government that that Smiley would fasten upon us.'"

"Well, we turned him out of the Grange and reported him as an anarchist, so it is up to Uncle Sam to deal with him," replied Aunt Laura.

"Good! I wish all of his class could get their deserts," said Eleanor warmly.

EVERYDAY ETIQUETTE

(Miss Hoyt will answer in this paper all questions on matters of etiquette addressed to her in care of this paper. If a personal answer is desired enclose a two-cent stamp.)

At a large dinner, with several servants and a long menu, the silver is laid for only the first three courses and thereafter supplied by the servants. For most people however with only one maid it is easier and quite as good form to lay all the silver on the table.

DEBUTANTE: You certainly may with perfectly propriety decline the wine at dinner, or anywhere else. Believe me the world doesn't drink as much wine as it did a few years ago, and only a very ill bred guest or host will comment on your refusal or even appear to notice it at all. Many people who have no moral squeamishness on the subject find it impossible to drink alcoholic beverages on weakness; it is not bad heart, a delicate stomach or some other physical weakness; it is not an unusual thing to find a man or woman in society who habitually abstains out of consideration for his or her health.

M. B.: When a guest is departing, whether a man or a woman, both host and hostess should rise. At a reception or ball, where the guests are many, the host and hostess are engaged, a departing guest need not bid them goodbye, unless it is convenient to do so.

WISCONSIN JOHNNY CAKE.
This recipe for "Johnny Cake" comes from a Wisconsin farm: "My pet economies are embodied in my Johnny Cake, which is very good and satisfying, and requires no addition to a former dinner. My pet economies are the use of cream for shortening and a very sparing use of eggs, because I think they together ruin much of the flavor. I use eggs for pancakes, Johnny cakes, etc."

REAL GERMAN CLOTHES PROVE HUGE FAILURE
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Amsterdam, Aug. 29.—In response to the old demand throughout Germany for a new mode of women's clothing that shall be entirely German and absolutely independent of Paris, the Munich Wiedland has brought out, after long preparation, a special supplement of entirely "German" designs, containing a series of colored designs, "absolutely German in inspiration and elaboration."

The supplement has attracted wide attention in the German newspapers, and almost without exception the criticism is adverse. The Berlin Tageblatt says: "The illustrations might well be taken for caricatures. The body from the waist upward appears far too short and humpy, the lower part is padded to appear as an enormity. Bulging pockets, hats too small or too large, falling over one ear; wide outstanding collars and

Do Salves Ever Heal Anything?

A dog licks his wound and Nature promptly heals it. But let us bear in mind that nothing is cleaner than a hound's tooth. The human mouth is generally swarming with bacteria, some of which are capable of setting up serious infection in a wound. Hence it is well not to follow the dog's example.

Our title today will excite grandma's curiosity and maybe her ungracious, healthy salves, so-called, are still very popular especially those in which MYSTERY is a principle ingredient and ODOR a marked characteristic. The salve is almost nice as her well known positively delicious salve odor of the stuff grandma used to put on our cuts and bruises. It seemed and smelled almost like a perfume. Brown soap and sugar poultice used to feel on our stone bruises—and punctures. Yet, after all, odors do not influence the multiplication of micro-organisms of disease cells.

The paraffin dressing of wounds and burns, used in the war hospitals and in our large industrial hospitals in this country is merely an effort to afford almost neutral while Nature heals the lesion. Paraffin or wax dressings are neutral, neither stimulating nor retarding the natural course of healing.

In the first aid treatment of a wound thorough antiseptic cleansing may be quite necessary. But it is a grave mistake, and a common cause to failure, to continually reapply antiseptic substances of any kind to a wound, because every known antiseptic substance will destroy tender young skin and tissue cells as quickly or more quickly than it will destroy germs in the case of the lesion. Once cleaned up, the ulcer should be kept clean by asepsis—and that is an art which only a physician with modern surgical training can properly offer. It is very simple; that the untrained hand cannot master it.

One of the wickedest of all salves or ointments in the long list of agents which retard or prevent natural healing is carbolic salve. Carbolic acid is a germicide, but also a destroyer of young skin cells. Perhaps you have noticed how indolent a trifling cut or bruise is about healing after you have treated it with carbolic acid for a while.

Other absurdities complete a figure from which any rational man would turn with loathing.

The Tageszeitung and other papers declare that if this is fair specimen of German genius for designing ladies' fashions German women had far better depend as in the past on Paris.

SIXTY-FIVE DEPERE MEN ENLIST IN HOME GUARD

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Green Bay, Wis., Aug. 29.—Sixty-five De Pere men have enlisted in a military organization and desire to be affiliated with the Wisconsin National Guard. An application for admission into the state guard will be made by Senator Timothy Burke to Governor Philipp. This company is offering its services to the state to act while the National Guards are in war.

We Concur with Dame Fashion, For Once.

Now that fashion decrees that the axilla shall be free from hair growth, may I ask if the removal of hair under the arm causes any evil result? By giving your opinion of shaving, depilatories, electric treatment, etc., you will be pleasing many women, I am sure. (M. E. W.)

ANSWER.—The removal of hair from the armpits causes time to tell results. A safety razor is probably the most satisfactory method. The electric needle is the only permanent hair remover, but it would be a prolonged tedious and rather uncomfortable treatment in that situation, to say nothing of great expense.

Formaldehyde for Foul Odor.

Please suggest some application which will remove an offensive odor from perspiring feet. (H. D.)

ANSWER.—Bathe the feet once a day for a week with a 10 per cent (alcohol-proof) of formalin. Formaldehyde (formalin) in a pint of water. Dry. Powder with four parts talcum and one part salicylic acid powder. Keep toes separated with bits of dry gauze or cotton, to absorb moisture, because the germs which produce the foul odor grow most rapidly with moisture.

THE SMILING STRANGER.

A few clouds floated overhead, and all the countryside seemed to know that it was autumn.

"Stop! Stop!" cried Parson Jeds, rushing down from his porch.

But it was too late. The sixteen-cylinder powerful Fritz car had crashed through his new garden wall and was now panting ruinously in the middle of the road.

"Oh!" exclaimed Parson Jeds. "If I wasn't a parson I'd call you a fool, you fool!"

The smiling stranger in the car glanced broadly.

"Why do you grin broadly, destructive knave?" demanded the parson wrathfully. "Oh, if I had my health and wasn't a parson I'd throw a flowerpot."

"Dodging the flowerpot neatly, the smiling stranger spoke:

"What was I to do? It was a choice between smashing into a tree and your all. What was I to do?" "You had the whole road to yourself. Besides, there's not a tree in sight!" "Ah, and there you are," crowed the smiling stranger triumphantly. "So I had to choose your wall."

At that moment, just in time to save the parson from a stroke, the keepers from the bughouse on the hill came and towed the smiling stranger away.

HASHING UP THE QUEST.

Not long ago I was a guest at a little week end house party, at which one of the chief indoor diversions was discussing and making fun of the best of the previous week's conversation. It was amusing, in a way, for our hosts were clever wits and good artists. They could pick people to pieces to perfection. One could not help laughing. One could not help a cold shiver run up one's spine at the shiver of pronunciation as to what would happen next week when someone else was the audience.

Did Our Grandmothers Do It? I think this habit of talking over guests in front of other guests is one of the unfortunate ticks that people nowadays permit themselves all too often. Perhaps our grandmothers did it, I don't know. I prefer to think that they didn't, and for that matter that our grandchildren won't do it. It is just a passing phase of bad manners.

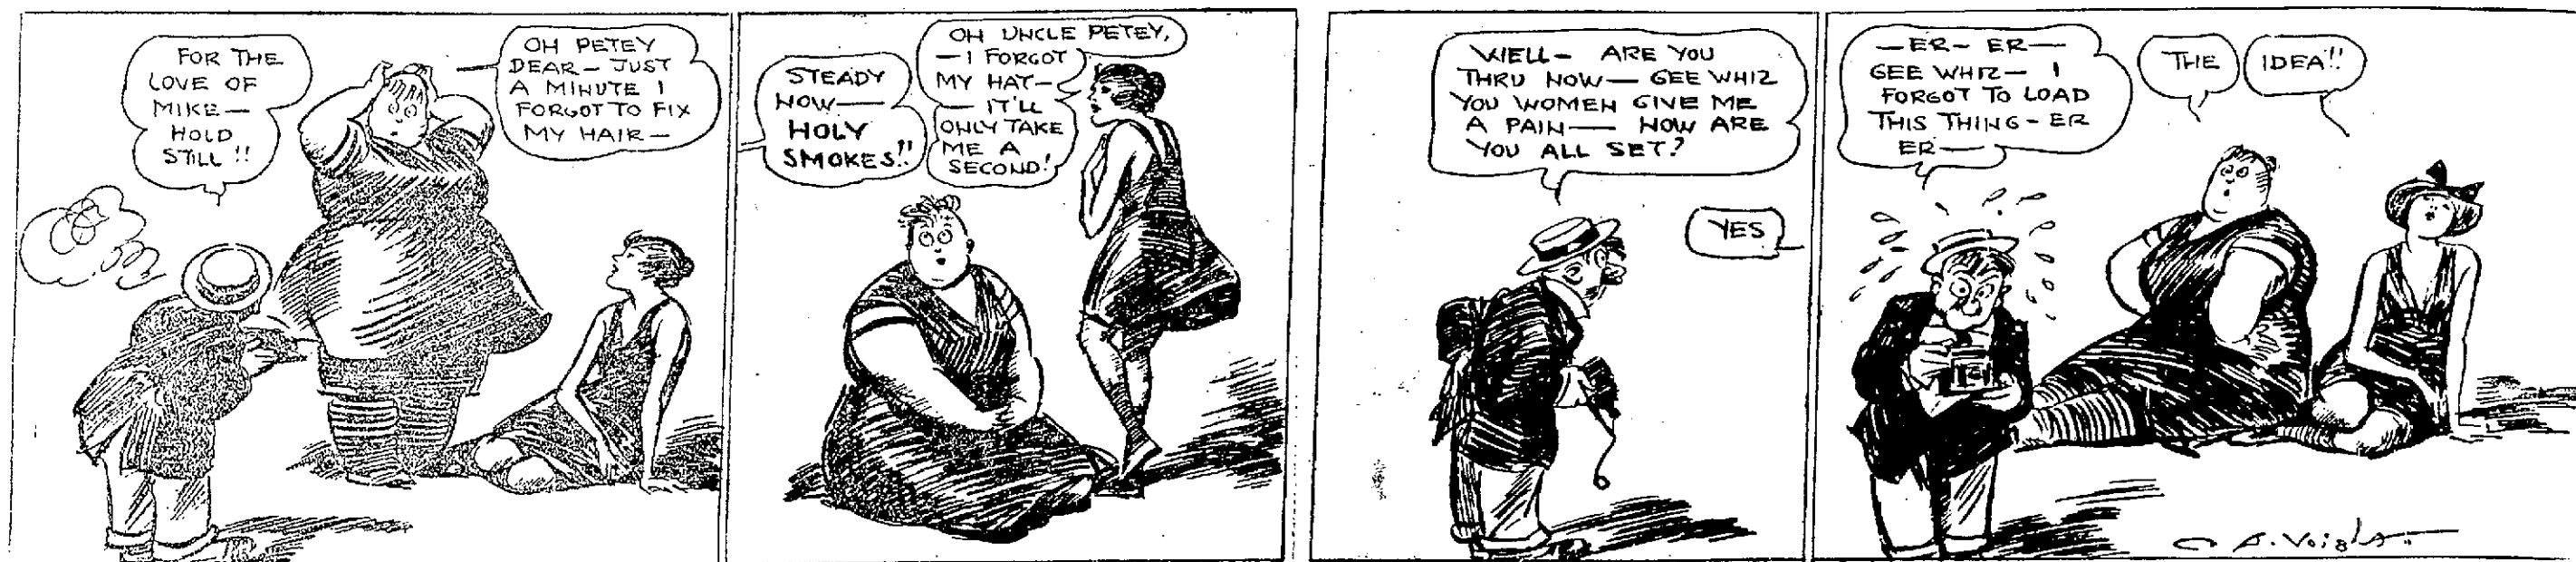

I wish we talked guests over much less even in the privacy of our immediate families. It is sometimes a temptation when one has carried the guest's bag to the train and picked up the guest room and dragged a weary guest to bed, to go on and on about the guest, and to let the inevitable let down, to serve him up at the next meal for conversation.

Takes The Bloom Off Hospitality. In a way there is nothing wrong with it. It is a guard one's tongue and says nothing untruthful or needless. And yet I don't like it. It takes the bloom off the flower of hospitality.

In some families the habit of criticism of outsiders, guests and others, is second nature. The children grow up in this atmosphere of sharp, unkind criticisms and remarks, and it is not surprising that they are very healthy. I call it a very unhealthy atmosphere. Of course human nature is the most interesting thing in the world. To me at least, it is like boogie with as much as possible about people and as little as possible

PETEY DINK—AIN'T THAT JUST LIKE A MAN!

The Real Man

By FRANCIS LYNDE

(Illustrations by IRWIN MYERS)

All rights reserved. United in an eager query.

"How?"

"He died last night—a little past midnight. They say they're going to bury him out at the dam—on the job that he pulled through and stood on its feet. One of Williams' quartermen deflected in with the story just a little while ago. I'm here to bet you even money that the whole town goes to the funeral."

"Great gosh!" said the man who was crumpling the burnt bacon. "Say, that's tough, Dixie! I don't care what he'd run away from back East; he was a man, right. Handling has been telling everybody how Smith wouldn't let the posse open fire on that gang of hold-ups last Friday night; how he chased across on the dam staglance alone and unarmored to try to serve the warrants on 'em and make 'em stop. It was glorious, but it wasn't war."

"To this the other mining man added a hard word. "Dead," he grunted; "and only a few hours earlier the girl had taken snap judgment on him and married somebody else! That's the woman of it!"

"Oh, hold on, Stryker," the ranch broker protested. "Don't you get me wrong about that. There are two strings to that bow, and the longest and sorriest one runs out to Colonel Baldwin's place on Little creek. I'm thinking, The Richlander business was only an incident. Stanton told me that much."

As the event proved, the seller of ranch lands would have lost his bet on the funeral attendance. For some unknown reason the police of Stanton's death did not appear at the afternoon papers, and only a few people went out in autos to see the coffin lowered by Williams' workmen into a grave on the mesa behind the construction camp; a grave among others where the victims of an early industrial accident at the dam had been buried. Those who went out from town came back rather scandalized. There had been a most hard-hearted lack of the common formalities, they said; a cheap coffin, no minister, no mourners, not even the poor fellow's business associates in the company he had fought so hard to save from defeat and extinction. It was a shame!

With this report passing from lip to lip in Brewster, another bit of gossip to the effect that Starbuck and Stillings had gone East with the disappointed sheriff, "to clear Smith's memory," as the street-talk had it, called forth no little comment. In the Ephra House cafe on the evening of the funeral day Stryker, the mining speculator, was loud in his criticisms of the High Line people.

"Yes," he railed; "a couple of 'em will go on a junketing trip East to 'clear his memory,' after they've let their 'wags' at the dam bury him like a yellow dog! And this Richlander woman; they say she'd known him ever since he and she were school kids together; she went down and took the train with her father just about the time they were planting the poor devil."

Three weeks of the matchless August weather had slipped by without incident other than the indictment by the grand jury of Crawford Stanton, Barney McGraw, and a number of others on a charge of conspiracy; and Williams, unimpressed since the night of the grand battle in which Sheriff Richlander had figured as the master of the hunt, had completed the great ditch system and was installing the machinery in the lately finished power house.

Over the hills from the northern mountain boundary of the Thiannoy a wandering prospector had come with a vague tale of a new strike in Sunrise Gulch, a placer district worked out and abandoned twenty years earlier in the height of the Red Butte excitement. Questioned closely, the tale-bearer confessed that he had no proof positive of the strike; but in the hills he had found a well-worn trail, lately used, leading to the old camp, and from one of the deserted cabins in the gulch he had seen smoke arising.

As to the fact of the trail the wandering tale-bearer was not at fault. On the most perfect of the late-August mornings a young woman, clad in serviceable khaki, and keeping her cowboy headgear and bud-top-boots in good countenance by duffing aside in a man's saddle, was pushing her mount up the trail toward Sunrise Gulch. From the top of a little rise the abandoned camp came into view, its heaps of worked-over gravel sprouting thickly with the wild growth of twenty years, and its crumbling shacks, only one of which seemed to have survived in habitable entirety, scattered among the first of the gulch.

At the top of the rise the horsewoman drew rein and shaded her eyes with a gantleted hand. On a bench beside the door on the single tenanted cabin a man was sitting, and she saw him stand to answer her hand-wave. A few minutes later the man, a gaunt

"How Often Have I Got to Tell You?"

young fellow with one arm in a sling and the pallor of a long confinement whitening his face and hands, was trying to help the horsewoman to dismount in the cabin doorway, but she pushed him aside and swung out of the saddle unaided, laughing at him out of the slate-gray eyes and saying: "How often have I got to tell you that you shuply can't help a woman out of a man's saddle?"

The man smiled at that. "It's automatic," he returned. "I shall never get over wanting to help you, I guess. Have you come to tell me that I can go?"

Flinging the bridle reins over the head of the wily little cow-pony which was thus left free to crop the short, sweet grass of the creek valley, the young woman led the man to the house and made him sit down.

"You are frightfully anxious to go and commit suicide, aren't you?" she teased, sitting beside him. "Every time I come it's always the same thing: 'When can I go?' You're not well yet."

"I'm well enough to do what I've got to do, Corona; and until it's done, besides, there is libbey."

"Where is Mr. Jibbey this morning?" "He has gone up the creek, fishing. I made him go. If I didn't take a club to him now and then he'd hang over me all the time. There never was another man like him, Corona. And at home we used to call him 'the black sheep' and 'the failure,' and cross the street to dodge him when he'd been drinking too much!"

"He says you've made a man of him; that you saved his life when you had every reason not to. You never told me that, John."

"No; I didn't mean to tell anyone. But to think of his coming out here to nurse me, leaving Verda on the night he married her! A brother of my own blood wouldn't have done it."

The young woman was looking up with a shrewd little smile. "Maybe the blood brother would do even that, if you had just made it possible for him to marry the girl he'd set his heart on, John."

"Piffle!" growled the man. And then: "Hasn't the time come when you can tell me a little more about what happened to me after the doctor put me to sleep that night at the dam?"

"Yes. The only reason you haven't been told was because we didn't want you to worry; we wanted you to have a chance to get well and strong again."

The man's eyes filled suddenly, and he took no shame. He was still shaky enough in nerve and muscle to excuse it. "Nobody ever had such friends, Corona," he said. "You all knew I'd have to go back to Lawrenceville and fight it out, and you didn't want me to go handicapped and half-dead. But how did they come to let me take away? I've known Macaulay ever since I was in knickers. He is not the man to take any chances."

The young woman's laugh was soundless. "Mr. Macaulay wasn't asked. He thinks you are dead," she said.

"What?"

"It's so. You were not the only one wounded in the fight at the dam. There were two others—two of McGraw's men. Three days later, just as colonel-daddy and Billy Starbuck were getting ready to steal you away, one of the others died. In some way the report got out that you were the one who died, and that made everything quite easy. The report has never been contradicted, and when Mr. Macaulay reached Brewster the police people told him that he was 'too late.' "Good heavens! Does everybody in Brewster think I'm dead?"

Nearly everybody. But you needn't look so horrified. You're not dead, you know; and there were no obituaries in the newspapers, or anything like that."

The man got upon his feet rather unsteadily.

"That's the limit," he said definitively. "I'm a man now, Corona; too much of a man, I hope, to hide behind another man's grave. I'm going back to Brewster, today!"

The young woman made a quaint little grimace at him. "How are you going to get there?" she asked. "It's twenty miles, and the walking is awfully bad—in spots."

"But I must go. Can't you see what everybody will say of me—that I was too cowardly to face the music when my time came? Nobody will believe that I wasn't a consenting party to this hide-away!"

"Sit down," she commanded calmly; and when he obeyed: "From day to day, since I began coming out here, John, I've been trying to rediscover the man whom I met just once, one evening over a year ago, at Cousin Adda's house in Guthrieville. I can't find him—he's gone."

"Corona," he said. "Then you recognized me?"

"Not at first. But after a while things began to come back; and what you told me—about Miss Richlander, you know, and the hint you gave me of your trouble—did the rest."

"Then you knew—or you thought—I was a criminal?"

She nodded, and her gaze was resting upon the nearby gravel heaps. "Cousin Adda wrote me. But that made no difference. I didn't know whether you had done the things they said you had, or not. What I did know was that you had broken your shackles in some way and were trying to get free. You were, weren't you?"

"I suppose so; in some blind fashion. But it is you who have set me free, Corona. It began that night in Guthrieville when I stole one of your gloves; it wasn't anything you said; it was what you so evidently believed and lived. And out here: I was simply a raw savage with a you first saw me. I had tumbled headlong into the abyss of the new and the elemental, and if I am trying to scramble out now on the side of honor and clean manhood, it is chiefly because you have shown me the way."

"When did I ever, John?"—with an up-glance of the gray eyes that was almost wistful.

Dinner Stories

"Darling," said she, "do you love me as much as ever?"

"Yes, dearie," said he, with his nose buried in his newspaper.

"That ought to have satisfied her, but she had to ask: 'Why?'"

"Oh, I dunno. Habit, I s'pose."

Two girlhood friends were exchanging confidences over their afternoon tea.

"I saw you in church, dear, yesterday," murmured the younger one.

"Oh, you were there? I didn't see you," gurgled the other.

"Yes, I was so glad to see that you finally induced your husband to accompany you to divine worship."

"Yes, Frank came along with me. He'd much rather go to the theater, but the theaters are not showing anything on Sundays now. But he disgraced me."

"Really? In church? How, pray?"

"The minister read four chapters from 'The Acts of the Apostles,' and my husband insisted on going out after every act."

At the annual prize day of a certain school the head boy rose to give his recitation.

"Friends, Romans, countrymen," he vociferated, "lend me your ears."

"There," commented the mother of a defeated pupil sneeringly. "That's Mrs. Bug's boy! He wouldn't be his mother's son if he didn't want to borrow something."

A man went into a hardware shop and inquired:

"How much do you ask for a bath tub for a child?"

"Two dollars and a half," was the reply.

"B-e-w!" whistled the customer.

"We'll have to go on washing the baby in the coal scuttle till the prices come down."

BELIEF SPRINGS UP THAT KERENSKY IS KITCHENER

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

London, Aug. 29.—The curiously widespread belief in England that Kitchener is still alive has now taken a new form, namely, the belief that Kerensky is Kitchener. "Everybody on our street is saying so," writes a correspondent to one of the London newspapers. The paper in reply points out that Kerensky is a young man of thirty, but remarks that this fact probably will not weigh much with the people who like to believe this kind of thing.

Home-Reading Course For Citizen-Soldiers

(Issued by the War Department and all rights to reprint reserved.)

This course of thirty daily lessons is offered to the men selected for service in the National Army as a practical help in getting started in the right way. It is informal in tone and does not attempt to give binding rules of discipline. These are contained in the various manuals and regulations of the United States Army, to which this course is merely introductory.

LESSON NO. 14 THE TEAM LEADERS

(Preceding Lessons: 1. Your Post of Honor. 2. Making Good as a Soldier. 3. Nine Qualities of a Soldier. 4. Getting Ready for Camp. 5. First Days in Camp. 6. Cleanliness in Camp. 7. Your Health. 8. Marching and Care of Feet. 9. Your Equipment and Arms. 10. Recreation in Camp. 11. Playing the Game. Team Work. 12. Have Every 13 Grouping Men Into Teams.)

Most of the men in the Army are private soldiers. Their work is of the greatest importance and deserves all the respect and praise which it receives. A great many men in the National Army, however, will be ambitious to rise to higher ranks. They will find plenty of encouragement and of opportunities for promotion. If you are one of these men, don't allow yourself to forget the fact that you can win promotion only by proving your fitness in each duty intrusted to you. It is a rare case when a man is "jumped" several ranks ahead. As a rule, he climbs from one rank to the next higher rank after having demonstrated in each position his intelligence, honor, and reliability. Advancement to the grade known as first class private. About one-fourth of the privates in each company may be given the rating "first-class," which means in substance that they are regarded as skilled and trustworthy soldiers.

Noncommissioned Officers

From the first-class privates are usually chosen the corporals. These are the squad leaders. They are appointed by the commanding officer of the regiment on the recommendation of the commanding officer in the company. In addition to the regularly appointed corporals, each company has a temporary appointment made by the company commander for the purpose of testing the ability of some private whom he is thinking of recommending for permanent appointment. In case the lance corporal does not make a good showing, or for any other reason he may be returned to the ranks when the commander of the company sees fit.

Next above the corporal in rank comes the sergeant. There are usually 9 to 11 sergeants in a company. Unless a sergeant has some other duty assigned to him, he is normally the leader of his squad. There are, however, many special duties constantly assigned to sergeants. The first sergeant (in Army slang, the "top sergeant") for example, keeps the company records, forms the company ranks, transmits orders from the company commander, and performs many other important tasks. The supply sergeant sees to bringing the supply of all kinds of the company. The stable sergeant is responsible for the stable care of horses and mules. The color sergeant carries the national or regimental colors. There are many other grades within the rank of sergeant which cannot be described here. You will gradually become familiar with them during your army experience.

Commissioned Officers

Sergeants and corporals are known as noncommissioned officers, because they are appointed by the company commander. Officers of higher ranks are known as commissioned, since they hold their rank

TESTIMONIALS FOR MEDICINES

Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company Publishes Only Genuine Ones.

The testimonials published by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company come unsolicited. Before they are used the Company takes great care to inform itself about the writer. Never knowingly, has it published an untruthful letter, never is a letter published without written consent signed by the writer.

The reason that thousands of women from all parts of the country write such grateful letters is that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought health and happiness into their lives, once burdened with pain and illness.

It has relieved women from some of the worst forms of female ills, from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, nervousness, weakness, stomach troubles and from the blues.

It is impossible for any woman who is well and who has never suffered to realize how these poor, suffering women feel when restored to health; and their kind desire to help other women who are suffering as they did.

You Can Tell The People Who Have Iron in Their Blood

—Strong, Healthy, Vigorous Folks

Doctor Says Ordinary Nuxated Iron Will Make Nervous Run-down People 100% Stronger in Two Weeks Time in Many Cases.

NEW YORK, N. Y.—"One glance is enough to tell which people have iron in their blood," says Dr. J. B. Seaver, a physician who has studied widely both in this country and in Great European medical institutions. In a recent discourse before the New York Academy of Medicine he was in the speaking class. Sleepless nights spent worrying over supposed ailments, nervousness with habit forming drugs and narcotics for nervous weakness, stomach, liver or kidney disease and useless attempts to brace up with strong coffee or other stimulants are what keep them suffering and vainly longing to be strong. Their real trouble is lack of iron in the blood. Without iron the blood has no power to change food into living tissue and therefore, nothing you eat does you any good; you don't get the strength out of it. In any charitable institution if they could take any man or woman under 40 who lacks iron and increase their strength 100 per cent or over in four weeks' time provided they have no serious organic trouble. They also offer to refund your money if it does not at least double your strength and endurance in ten days' time. It is obtained in this city by Smith Drug Co., and all other druggists.

Concentrated Advertising

In the space of a city block there are perhaps from 25 to 50 homes. In each home something that is advertised on this page is needed today. On the corner, maybe, is the house of the young man who wants a better job; he reads the HELP WANTED-MALE classification every day. His neighbor is in the market for an used automobile, so to him the automobile classification is most interesting this week. The folks next door want to move; they are looking for a house. Others want to buy furniture, engage servants or find places to take a vacation.

Everybody reads The Gazette Want Ads because this concentrated advertising is rich with the best wants and offers of Janesville.
